L O O K B O O K

Tracy Stevens began painting in the 4th grade at Lyndhurst Elementary School. She was reading at a sixth grade reading level and the principal of the school created an art class for Tracy and 2 other students so they wouldn't be bored in class. The art teacher recognized her talent and encouraged her to pursue her talent.

Tracy took art classes in middle school which lead her to attend Carver Vocational Technical High School studying Commercial Arts. In her 20's, Tracy entered a contest that Salem Tobacco Products hosted. Her artwork was picked to get published on metal slide cartons, in addition, Tracy was awarded $1000. Shortly afterwards, one of her photographs was published in a amateur photographer's coffee table book.

After all of this success, Tracy decided to pursue a career in accounting. Feeling unfulfilled, she took continuing studies classes at Maryland Institute College of Art for graphics, web design, and marketing. Tracy is now a full time artist and part-time teaching artist.

Throughout these pages, you will find a plethora of creations. These paintings celebrate women of all colors, shapes, sizes, and backgrounds. These magnificent pieces are pleasing to the eye, impressively designed, and meet a vast variety of style preferences.
